To all authors and contributors to our publications

BCRA publications: copyright issues

Thank you for contributing to one of our publications. Clearly, you would not be sending us your material if you were not giving us permission to publish it, but we need to make sure that the extent of the permission is agreed. Basically, we do not ask you to transfer copyright to us, but we ask that you give us a licence to use your contribution in print and online in various ways. The details are explained below.

1) Ownership of Copyright

- The material you send us should be your own original work and must not infringe any existing copyright.
- If you are not the author or photographer, it is your responsibility to obtain recorded permission from the person who did write the article, take the photo, draw the map, etc. As a courtesy to the person(s) concerned, you should acknowledge them in your contribution. Please contact us if you need more information.

2) Transfer of Copyright

- We do not ask you to transfer copyright to us, so you will still own copyright in the material you send to us and you will be free to use it elsewhere (although an acknowledgement that we have used it would be appreciated).

3) What we will do with your material

Obviously, we are going to use your work in our printed publication. However, we would also like to be able to use it in the online versions of our publications and, for that, we need your explicit permission. We therefore ask you to agree that...

- BCRA shall retain, in perpetuity, a non-exclusive licence to reproduce the work containing your material in any medium. This licence shall extend to the separate publication of individual articles in the work, and to BCRA's licensing of the content of the work to database and library services, but not to any other use of your material.

If you need any further information as to what this means, please see bcra.org.uk/copyright or get in touch with us.

How to convey your agreement to us

The simplest way for you to do this is to paste the following text into an email and to send it to your editor, cc-ing it to copyright2@bcra.org.uk. We do not need a "signature" from you, so an email will be fine. Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

1. I agree to license my contribution to BCRA's publications in accordance with the copyright licensing statement on your website and contained in the online document licence_061113_dg1b.pdf
2. I confirm that the contribution is my original work, and will not infringe any existing copyright. I have obtained recorded permission from the owners of any copyright material that I have incorporated, and I have acknowledged them in my article.
3. I agree that this licence will apply to all my previous contributions to BCRA's publications.
4. I agree that this licence will apply to all my future contributions to BCRA's publications, unless I state otherwise at the time of submission of my work.
